Local photographer, empowering designer and Cleveland native opens own gallery and shop in Crocker Park

Westlake, OH: Crocker Park is pleased to welcome photographer and Clevelander Emily Roggenburk and her thoughtfully creative photos and designs to her own gallery and shop located on Crocker Park's Main Street. Known for her breathtaking photo of Cleveland's skyline during the 2016 Cleveland Cavaliers' victory parade, Emily Roggenburk plans to bring photography, empowerment focused apparel and other local pop-up shops to the gallery space located between Hyde Park Steakhouse and Urban Outfitters.

"I am thrilled to be expanding the business from online only to a permanent retail space in Crocker Park," said owner, Emily Roggenburk. "It's incredible to be able to offer my customers a space to go to that combines their favorite national retailers and restaurants with local artists all in one place."

Roggenburk's shop layout combines her incredible aerial photography displayed in different prints and formats for purchase alongside her insightful apparel line which centers around women empowerment. She also plans to invite other local vendors into the gallery on a monthly basis for special "pop-up" shops to help create a strong bond in the local Cleveland vendor space.

Emily Roggenburk's shop is the perfect addition to Crocker Park's 100+ retailers ranging from national brands as well as locally owned business, the unique concept is an excellent balance.

"The wonderful charm of Crocker Park is that it truly has everything you need in 12 city blocks," said Stacie Schmidt, Vice President of Marketing and Communications for Stark Enterprises. "Being able to add Emily Roggenburk's creative designs and concept is a wonderful addition to our property where national brands, premier restaurants and incredible local businesses are all thriving in one place together."

Emily Roggenburk's shop is located on 25 Main Street between Hyde Park Steakhouse and Urban Outfitters. Shop hours will be Saturdays and Sundays and feature periodic pop-up shops.
